Luna Compassionate Association Delivers Two-Day Charitable Drive to St. Mary Community

The Luna Compassionate Association delivered another successful two-day charity and thanksgiving service to the rural community of Luna District in St. Mary. The event, held August 15 to 16, formed part of the association's ongoing outreach to the district, an area it has served for more than a decade. Residents turned out over the two days to access a range of services, including health screenings, back-to-school supplies, and financial grants for students preparing for the new academic year.The charitable organisation was formed more than 15 years ago by Andrew Campbell and Chet Hylton. Both men grew up in the Luna District before relocating to the United States, and they have maintained close ties to the community ever since. Campbell, director of the association, said the initiative is his way of giving back to the community he once called home. "I believe it is important to give back to the community I once called home," Campbell said. He said the association's work has grown steadily over the years, but one achievement stands out above the rest. He pointed to the association's ability to provide medication to residents in the district. The medication is supplied through a group he works with in Florida and has become a cornerstone of the health fair each year. Hylton, co-founder of the association, also based in the United States, praised the donors who have supported the initiative over the years, saying their contributions have made the annual event possible. He used the occasion, however, to call on others to lend their support. Hylton noted that funding remains critical to meeting the needs of the community, and said the association hopes to expand its reach in the coming years. Dionne Clarke Williams, principal of a primary school in the area, expressed gratitude to the association for its constant support of the community. She said the back-to-school supplies and grants provided during the event will make a real difference for students and families as the new term approaches.The Luna Compassionate Association said it plans to return to the district next year, continuing a tradition that has become a fixture on the community's calendar.
